

TERMS OF THE POST.

THE BOSTON POST is published every morning, at No. 21, Water Street, Boston, by CHARLES G. GREENE, at four dollars per annum, payable in advance; four dollars and fifty cents, if paid within six months, or five dollars at the end of the year. These conditions will be rigidly adhered to.

STENOGRAPHIC GLIMPSES OF CONGRESS.

No. 124.

Washington, April 24, 1834.—To-day both Houses sat late, without effecting much—the Senate till half past four, and the House half past 6 o'clock. In the former, Mr. Robbins, upon the introduction of a "distress" from Rhode Island, made a set speech of some hours, going into all the sins of the administration.

Mr. Webster presented a "distress" from Pennsylvania, (I think,) and made a short speech; but really in consequence of the "removal of the deposits," these sort of speeches have become very distressing—and every body is pretty essentially disgusted with them.

Mr. Kane made a speech on the subject of the right and propriety of Legislative instruction, maintaining the propriety of instructing Senators, by the sovereignty of the State, where-soever that sovereignty may reside, whether in the Legislature or elsewhere. It was a sound argument—and not being a long, but considerable, speech, I hope you will honor it with an entrance on your Journal—it deserves to be Post-ed.

The Senate, after Mr. K. had closed, went into Executive business.

Mr. Bibb has the floor to-morrow.

In the House, Mr. Kennan, of Penn. made a deposite speech against the "removal," &c. He is a pretty tolerably sensible speaker, notwithstanding he is in favor of the Bank—but he said nothing but what has been reiterated a hundred times—though there was one idea he advanced, which ought to stand in bold relief for its absurdity. He said the people of Pennsylvania voted for Gen. Jackson out of gratitude for his victory at New Orleans—but they expected, at the same time, the Old Hero was to refund the payment of this debt of gratitude, by advancing particularly the interests of the State—and he complained very grievously that the interest of Pennsylvania was not regarded. Moonshine! The patriotic State of Pennsylvania won't thank Mr. McKennan for disparaging their interested gratitude.

The Appropriation Bill was under discussion during the rest of the day, after Mr. McK. had floundered and thundered through his speech.

Mr. Adams occupied much of the time in contending for a sound principle, I think, viz: that the Appropriation Bill was not a proper place to introduce regulations or salaries and matters of this kind, which should be regulated by a separate law.

Mr. Southard answered him.

As for all the rest, it is not chronicled in the Globe and Intelligencer?

It has been a dull, laborious and wearisome day; there was only one thing done that will give satisfaction to all parties, viz: a joint resolution in the Senate for "moistening the clay" of Pennsylvania Avenue—for the dust has become intolerable.

They have a rumor here, that there was a sort of a mob in Baltimore, yesterday; but I could not learn who preached to them. When the sinks of iniquity (as Jefferson called the cities) have a rowdiness, why the country is agitated! Why, it is as easy to get up a mob in any large city of the union, as to make a distress speech; but who are those that compose it? Do people pretend that mobs represent public sentiment?—or those who preach to them? Be it remembered, that all the mobs have been got up for the benefit of the Nationals, now surnamed the Whigs! Heigho! REIS EFFENDI.

From the Pilgrims of the Rhine.

Man's Life.—There are two lives to each of us, gliding on at the same time, scarcely connected with each other!—the life of our actions—the life of our minds; the external and the inward history; the movements of the frame—the deep and ever restless workings of the heart! They who have loved, know that there is a diary of the affections, which we might keep for years without having occasion even to touch upon the exterior surface of life, our busy occupations, the mechanical progress of our existence; yet by the last are we judged—the first is never known. History reveals men's deeds, men's outward characters, but not themselves.—There is a secret self that hath its own life, "rounded by a dream," unpermeated, unguessed.

Love and ambition.—One of the common disappointments of the heart is, that women have so rarely a sympathy in our better and higher aspirations. Their ambition—it is not for great things; they cannot understand that desire "which scorns delight and loves laborious days." If they love us, they usually exact too much. They are jealous of the ambition to which we sacrifice so largely, and which divides us from them; and they leave the stern passion of great minds to the only solitude which affection cannot share. To aspire is to be alone.

The poet.—When the poet mourns in his immortal verse for the dead, tell me not that fame is in his mind! It is filled by thoughts, by emotions, that shut the living from his soul. He is breathing to his genius—to that sole and constant friend, which has grown up with him from the cradle—the sorrows too delicate for human sympathy; and when afterward he consigns the confession to the crowd, it is from the hope of honour—honour, not for himself, but for the being that is no more.

Love, when the object is dying.—"In a love like this, there is something ineffably beautiful. It is essentially the poetry of passion. Desire grows hallowed by fear, and scarce permitted to take its vent in the common channel of the senses, breaks forth into those vague yearnings, those lofty aspirations, which pine for the bright, the far, the unattained. It is "thede sere of the moth for the star," it is the love of the soul.

The New Year.—A hushed and solemn night is that in which the dark gates of time open to receive the ghost of the dead year, and the young and radiant stranger rushes forth from the clouded chasms of eternity. On that night it is said that the dead are troubled in their forgotten graves, and men feast and laugh, while demon and angel are contending stage, for their doom.

Philosophers.—Vane was of that time of life when philosophers become objects of interest. At first they are teachers; secondly, friends; and it is only a few who arrive at the third and find them deceivers.

Death.—What is death, but the forgetfulness of some few hearts added to the general unconsciousness of our existence that pervades the universe? The bubble breaks in the vast desert of the air without a sound.

THE STATE MUSEUM:
WASHINGTON HALL, No. 221, Washington street, opposite the head of Franklin street, will be open for the reception of visitors, and brilliantly illuminated in the evening. The Museum is in complete order and decorated for the occasion.

STENOGRAPHIC GLIMPSSES OF CONGRESS.

No. 125.

Washington, April 25, 1834.—The Senate was crowded at an early hour this morning to hear Mr Clay sing hosannahs about the Thig victory in Hanover, (Va) upon his presenting a distressor from Pa. (Pennsylvania, not pa?)

He made a pretty stirring speech, and took Gov. Wolf by the ears, for his "errors of fact and opinion—no doubt unintentional." He talked a good deal about his native place—a besetting sin with all Virginians—except those on our side, of course! It is certainly not a little nauseating to hear people constantly telling where they were born, as though it were a matter to boast of. We never hear people, however, of but one State in the union repeat this vain boast; and to do them justice, the best of them are always above boasting of what may be, perhaps, some felicity, but no merit.

Mr Forsyth replied to Mr Clay, and justified Gov. Wolf and Pennsylvania for their patriotism. He made some not very obscure hints about the Whigs of Baltimore.

Mr Clay rejoined in a sort of comico serious manner, and was allowed to have the last word.

Mr Bibb then had the floor, on the orders of the day, and made a speech about the Protest.

Yesterday the Senate despatched considerable Executive business, and confirmed many nominations that had been before them six weeks. They had some broad hints for a few days past, that unless they would attend to their Executive duties, they should give some better reasons than threats, as Clay and Clayton had done. Poor Mr Sprague was forced to vote for the nomination of the Marshal for the district of Maine. I really hope he will be able to excuse himself to the Whigs!

The Protest will furnish matter for another week's debate, I think; unless something more unwelcome should happen to come up; in which case the Whigs will lay it on the table. It was Mr Webster's opinion, I understand, (I don't vouch for it) that the Protest ought to have been received and answered; they cannot answer it without receiving it, and they have determined to reject it—but nevertheless it will be entered on the Journal, in the Register. Gov. Lincoln made an assault upon the Post office, and Pope of Ky. came to the rescue. The Gov. did absolutely "distress" the passage of the appropriation Bill. He took the day to himself; so this may be taken as an excuse for my brevity.

The Baltimore Republican, in speaking of the late Bank meeting held in that city, and in allusion to the boast of the Tory Wigs that several individuals, who were once democrats, participated in its proceedings, says—

"Verily the Speakers were worthy of the cause in which they were engaged—and as to the meeting, and the result of it, we are confident that so far from operating to the injury of the President, nothing could have occurred which, in its effects, would have added more to the strength of the Jackson party in this city. They are roused to a higher degree than they have ever been before, and for every man that we have lost, we have gained two."

A new steamboat, intended to ply between Lowell and Nashua, was launched at the former place a few days since. The Journal says—

"She is about one hundred feet long on deck, and has twenty feet four inches breadth. Such is her construction, that the draught of water, with all her machinery, freight and passengers on board, will not exceed two and a half feet. Being intended for the transportation of passengers, mostly, the preparations are rather for neatness and convenience than for burthen. The engine was built in Providence, and is of thirty-five horse power, neat and compact, with two large boilers to be placed forward of the wheels on deck. The only obstacle in the navigation, through the whole distance, fourteen miles, to Nashua, is a small rapid, where it is estimated that a boat drawing three feet may always pass safely during the severest drought. The boat, it is expected, will be ready for operation in three or four weeks. She will make three trips per day, and it is expected to do it in two hours."

Albert Smith, Esq. has been re-appointed Marshal for the District of Maine, by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Mr Caldwell, of New Orleans has obtained a loan of $20,000 of that city, to aid in completing his arrangements for lighting it with gas.

"What a funny old man."—Daddy Lang says "the Woods are drawing excellent loads to the Boston Tremont."

By the way, Mrs Wood takes her farewell Benefit, this evening, in "Love in a Village," and "The Quaker." Our vocabulary of praise has already been exhausted upon her singing, and we are consequently unable to enlarge upon the subject at present.

Friend Zachariah Poulson was singing "John Anderson my Joe," the last that was seen of him, at the Powlton feast.

An attempt was made to get up a second row in Baltimore on Wednesday, which failed.

The British vessels at Philadelphia all hoisted their flags during the Powlton celebration.

Edinburgh Review, No. 118, for January—

This work has been issued from the press of Messrs Lilly, Wait, Coleman & Holden for some time. It continues, with its great compeer, the Quarterly, to reflect, but in different hues, the "form and pressure" of the current literature and opinions of the times. There are twelve articles devoted to the various subjects of Political Economy, Religious Tolerance, Historical Memoirs, Penal and Corporation Law, Travels, Natural Theology, English Politics, and Ecclesiastical Reform.

The seventh article, on Miss Aiken's Court of Charles the First, and the twelfth, on Thacknay's History of the Earl of Chatham, present interesting views of the condition of the country, and of the cabinets and politics of two important periods in English history. The management of the Bridgewater Bequest, which has been the means of calling forth the recent powerful treatises on Natural Theology, is the subject of the eighth article, in which the first work of the series—Whewell's Astronomy and General Physics—is somewhat roughly, but ably handled. The critical allowance, however, that he knows of no living writer who could have done greater justice to the subject, and that Mr Whewell's powerful argument is conceived in a tone of lofty sentiment, composed in a vigorous style, and exhibits extensive and varied knowledge.

The readers of that splendid invective which Burke, in his old age, poured out upon the Duke of Bedford, with a resistless power, that out-did the most brilliant efforts of his manhood, will find, in the article on Wiffers' Memoirs of the House of Russell, a more favorable analysis of the honors of the present Lord John Russell's ancestors, which may serve to correct the biased views of the indignant pensioner of Beaconsfield.

Miss Aiken's popular sketches of the Courts of Elizabeth, James the First, and Charles the First—the last of which has been lately republished in this country—the reviewer says, are executed with grace and ability. "Her style," observes the Edinburgh critic, "is fluent and agreeable, sometimes almost eloquent, never ponderous or stilted, and pursuing, for the most part, that even tenor of easy narration which is most attractive to the general reader, and most suitable to the mixed character of the work—Miss Aiken is, on the whole, one of the most successful writers in this difficult species of composition."

The Pilgrims of the Rhine, Bulwer's new novel, is travelling with the rapidity, almost, of light over our land. It is praised by all readers, and puffed by all editors. The irresistible mental power of Bulwer has subdued opposition, and he is now acknowledged by at least seven-eighths of the literary world, to be without a competitor. Extracts from his last work, which has been re-printed by the Harpers, may be found upon our First Page.

Familiar Anecdotes of Sir Walter Scott, by James Hogg, the Ettrick Shepherd, is the title of a volume published by the Harpers. It contains, in all, one hundred and eighty-eight, out of two hundred and fifty-one pages, are devoted to the Shepherd. We have been disappointed in this book. It is worth but little save the interesting sketch of Mr Hogg, by S. D. Bloodgood, Esq. which occupies the first part of it.

Drake's Book of the Indians is a very valuable publication; full of history and information which is every day becoming more important. The author has proved himself competent to the great task he undertook, and has produced a volume which evinces research, labor and talents worthy the most liberal patronage of the public.

"The Mechanic" is the title of a deserving monthly periodical published in this city, at No 3, Cornhill, by Geo. W. Light, under the editorial supervision of Messrs T. Claxton, Geo. W. Light, and J. M. Wightman. Each number contains thirty-two pages of interesting matter—a large portion of it original—relating to the mechanic arts, and properly illustrated by wood cuts or lithographic prints. The contents of this Magazine have been uniformly selected with judgment and taste, and have been such as were calculated to be not only instructive, but entertaining. The last number contains a sketch of the life of Robert Fulton, with an account of his submarine boat and torpedo—an explanation of the Water Ram—a description of the Sea Walls of Boston Harbor—and a condensed history of Telegraphic Language—together with articles upon the comparative strength of cordage, the Uniting Air and Water Wheel, &c. &c. We can confidently recommend The Mechanic as worthy of public patronage.

Mr Mossie.—This gentleman gives his twelfth entertainment, at the Temple, this evening. The number of patrons has increased each successive night; and among the large number who have attended his entertainment, we have heard no one express any dissatisfaction—on the contrary, all seem pleased, and desirous that Mr M., who is really a man of talent, should be encouraged and sustained. A more agreeable evening's entertainment cannot be found in Boston.

To the Editor of the Morning Post.

Mr Greene.—I perceive by reading my Jesuit of Saturday evening, that our new church in Pond street is commenced, and that a committee of gentlemen are appointed for its superintendence. I would beg leave, sir, through your paper, to suggest to the Committee the propriety of erecting it without the use of ardent spirits, the report of the Atlas that administration men are not temperance folks to the contrary notwithstanding.

One who expects to sit in the new Church.

Two young men—brothers—of the college of York, U. C., were drowned in the bay of that city on the 12th instant, their names were Rutherford. It is supposed that shortly after putting off in a boat from the shore, one of them was seized with an epileptic fit, to which he was subject, and fell overboard.—His brother apparently jumped into the water, and in attempting to save him, also lost his life.

POLICE COURT.

[Monday.]

Fighting for Fun.—William Harris, and a dozen of his mesmates, felt wolfy about the head and shoulders on Saturday night, and in order to take the wrinkles out of their bones, which had become torpid by a week's inactivity, sallied out, like wild bears, in search of food for fight; and they first fell in with Patrick Smith. In narrating their manœuvres in the affray, Patrick said—"Them what couldn't get a chance to bate me, houl't on me, to keep me from falling, while the others were putting it intil me!" Having taken off the edge of their appetite, by giving Smith a decent pickling, they relieved him of his hat, and sent him adrift. Smith stated his griefs to Samuel Bowden, a watchman, who gave chase to Harris, still flourishing Smith's hat in triumph.

Upon being challenged for his conduct, Harris threatened to serve Bowden in the same manner, and attacked him. He was then joined by half a dozen of his friends, who soon prostrated the watchman, whom they kicked and bruised severely. Harris encouraged his assistants, by crying out, "Kill the d—d watchman, don't let him get up alive." Mr Bowden, however, was soon reinforced by the watchmen, and Harris was carried to the watch-house, notwithstanding he swore he would "never go there alive." This being an assault upon a watchman, in the discharge of his duty, Harris was ordered to find bonds to the amount of $100, to take his trial at the Municipal Court.

More Anti-Watchism.—"Leonard, and another gentleman—I don't know as you can call him exactly a gentleman neither; for I don't think he is anything more than a man, as you may say, and I guess you can put it down man," said a watchman, to the magistrate, as he commenced a set speech, by way of testifying against John Leonard.—"Well, as I was saying, Leonard asked me to take something to drink; but when I refused, he began to be noisy, and I advised him to go home. I kind-a eased and edged him along like, till we reached Cross street, when he ran down quicker a few, and raised one of the signal kind of noises, that the Irish make in Ann street, when they want to raise a mob; and then caught up this ere stone, and let it split right at my head, and took me about the middle of the hat."

The stone was introduced as a witness, and upon examination, was found to weigh between three and four pounds—considerable more than the rest of the testimony, adduced weighed;—and if it had struck watchee fairly on the pate, it would have 'split' his knowledge box "quicker a few." Leonard was ordered to recognize in the sum $100, for trial at the Municipal Court, and committed for want thereof.

An unlucky bargain.—Patrick Kenny got a little groggy on Saturday. "You couldn't get a better bargain, though he couldn't see straight," said a neighbor, who manifested a disposition to swear him clear of the scrape. At any rate his judgment was so unsteady that he permitted some skin-flint to charge him double price for a peck of potatoes, the last thing in which a sober Irishman could be taken in. This, in his wife's opinion, was proof positive that he was leaky, and she, being, a prudent housewife, with a smart touch of the Tartar, undertook to chastise him with her fist for his extravagance. Patrick seized an old oyster knife to defend himself with, and, in turn, became the assailant, compelled his wife to evacuate, and cry murder, and also attempted to break through the door of a room in which she had retreated. It was generally considered by those who had an opportunity to become acquainted with the habits of these animals, that the female was more than a match for her mate; but that they were not in the habit of trying conclusions, except when Patrick had secured the treacherous aid of the rum cask, and therefore he was removed out of harm's way for four months.

Slave Case.—Desperate Assault.—Mr John J. V. Westervelt deputy sheriff, accompanied by his assistant, went yesterday morning to arrest a man of color, named Louis Martin, who is supposed to be the slave of John Endors, of Richmond, Virginia. They succeeded in arresting him in a store at the foot of Water street; but had not long had him in custody, before he stabbed Mr Westervelt in the left breast, and inflicted a wound of the most dangerous character. Martin then wounded another man who was present, and then ran off. He was however pursued by some of the bystanders, and again taken into custody. Mr Westervelt remains in a very precarious situation.—N. Y. Jour. Com.

The Drees.—Thetrial of the family of the Drees, took place in the Mayor's Court yesterday. The charge was forgery. After a full and interesting investigation, Elijah Drew was convicted, and Charles and Elisha, the sons, were acquitted and discharged.—Elijah Drew has nobeen sentenced.—Philad. paper.

A person by the name of More was lately shot at Concord, Louisiana, by Dr Hunt.—The Doctor immediately gave himself up to the authorities, but was forthwith discharged, the homicide being considered perfectly justifiable, as the individual shot had raised his rifle to fire on the Doctor, whose life, for some time, he had threatened.

We regret to stat that, in consequence as is supposed of blow inflicted on him by some colored people and portugese, at Dartmouth, on Monday evening 21st instant, a sailor by the name of James Whitehouse, died in this town on Thursday—N. Bedford Mercury.

John Peterson was killed by a deputy marshal of New Orleans, while in the discharge of his duty. Johnson the marshal, immediately surrendered himself.

Bills of the SouthBank, ones and twos, altered to fives, by cutting the word five from other bills and pasting it over the words one and two, are in circulation. The cheat is easily detected.—Trus.

Cholera.—In addition to the death of Commodore LABORD, mentioned a day or two since of cholera, we have to announce that of the French Consul Havana, on the 11th inst. of the same disorder.—N. Y. Com.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, on Friday, the question of the receiving of the Protest being under consideration, Mr Bibb obtained the floor, and addressed the Senate in favor of his amendment, which is, in effect, "that the Message of the President of the United States be not received." Before Mr Bibb had concluded, he gave way to a motion, that the Senate, when it adjourns, adjourn to meet on Monday, which was carried in the affirmative. The Senate then adjourned.

In the House, Mr Duncan asked and obtained leave of the House to lay on the table, and have printed, a bill to modify and extend an act to incorporate the subscribers to the Bank of the United States, with certain limitations and conditions, which bill, he gave notice. He intends to offer as a substitute for a bill reported from the Committee of Ways and Means to regulate the deposits of the public money in the State and Local Banks, when that bill should be considered in the Committee of the Whole.

[This proposed amendment provides that the Charter of the present Bank of the United States shall be continued for ten years from the 4th day of March, 1836, provided that the United States shall surrender the whole of its stock, and the present Stockholders shall surrender half of the stock in the Bank held by them respectively—the several States to have the right to subscribe, at par value, in proportion to their respective representation in the House of Representatives of the United States, for the twenty-one million of dollars of stock so to be surrendered, or the citizens thereof, in the event of any State's declining to subscribe and pay in the amount of the quota on or before the 1st day of February, 1836. The amendment embraces several other new features—such as limiting the dividend on stock to seven per cent. per annum—the surplus, after the accumulation of a contingent fund of three millions, to be paid over into the Treasury of the United States—prohibiting the issue of any notes of a denomination less than ten dollars—requiring a bonus of $200,000 per annum, to be appropriated to internal improvements. &c. &c.—Int. Nat.]

The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the Appropriation Bill, which was discussed until a late hour—when the House adjourned, without having acted definitively upon it.

Captain Percival, of the sch. Gen. Jackson, in a letter recently received, states that after leaving St Salvador, (no date given,) he proceeded to the Island of Pauls, where he found twenty-one poor unfortunate beings, the only survivors of ninety one men, women, and children—crew and passengers of the English ship Lady Monro, cast away there. They had been shipwrecked ten days, but the bodies of the dead remained unburied. After performing the unpleasant task of committing the putrid bodies to the earth, he embarked with the survivors, on board his vessel, and carried them in safety to Port Louis, in the Isle of France. The Lady Monro was commanded by Capt John Aikin. She sailed from Calcutta on the 27th June, and was wrecked on the night of the 11th October.—Trans.

Savings Banks were first established, by law, in England, about the year 1812, on the suggestion of Mr Bentham, and the influence of Mr Rose. The plan proposed by the former, was, however, but partly adopted. It is stated in a London paper, that the sum now deposited in the Savings Banks throughout Great Britain and Ireland amounts to six millions of pounds sterling; and the number of those institutions is said to be five hundred.

Harvard University.—The usual Spring Exhibition will take place in the Chapel this day; the exercises will commence at 11 o'clk. A. M.

MASONS' ATTEND.—Bricklayers, Stone Masons, and Plasterers.—A special meeting of the Boston Operative Masons' Society, will be held at Concord Hall, on TO-MORROW EVENING, April 30, at half past 7 o'clock, to hear the report of their delegates, and for the admission of members and such other business as may come before the meeting.

J. H. CUSHMAN, Sec'y.

Warren Theatre.—Mr Blake's "Major Jack Downing" was welcomed on the stage, last evening, by a very crowded audience, who manifested throughout its representation the liveliest symptoms of delight, and the perpetual stream of jokes were promptly responded to by universal laughter. Mr B. has manufactured from the Downing letters, an excellent piece, devoid of political allusions which might be obnoxious to the censure of any party. He exhibits the redoubtable Major in his glory at Washington; shows him up at Downingville, and then carries him across the water to London.

TWELFTH NIGHT OF IMITATIONS

AND IMPROVISATIONS.—JOHN C. MOSSIE respectfully proposes to give an Intellectual Entertainment at the Temple on TUESDAY EVENING, April 29.

Part First. Brief selections from the Poems of the following American Poets—Bryant, Dana, Halleck, Pierpont and Sprague.

In the course of these readings and recitations, imitative specimens of six kinds of Affection—fashionable and unfashionable, will be given—introduced by David Crockett's laughable Protest against "The Dandified, the Soft Talkers, and the Effeminated."

Part Second. Imitations of ten of the most distinguished living American Orators. After which, J. C. M. will contrast the finished intellectual Gladiators of the late Hon. JOHN RANDOLPH, and the rough but effective knock-me-down oratory of DAVID CROCKETT, of Tennessee.

Part Third. An Improvisation—the subject of which is the first drawn by any lady present from the themes collected from the audience, folded and signed by the writer of each. Slips of paper will be distributed, but it is respectfully suggested, that much time would be saved if those who intend to give subjects would bring them ready written.

At 7 o'clock, at the door, which opens at 7—Entertainments commence at 8 precisely, and usually terminates in about two hours.

N. B. Many Ladies continue to honor these imitations &c. by their attendance.

Tickets may also be had at the Bookstore of Clapp & Broaders, No. 11 School street. ap 30
